

Procurement Reform Training

The Procurement Act received Royal Assent on 26 October 2023 and represents the single most significant transformation to UK public procurement law for decades.

We recognise that this brings with it opportunity but also uncertainty. Whether you are a contracting authority or utility responsible for ensuring a robust and compliant process, or a bidder regularly tendering for public contracts, our team of procurement specialists is here to help you through the transition.

Find out how our Procurement specialists can help you prepare for the new regime by contacting us at: procurement@borges-salmon.com.

What does our training entail?

Our leading procurement experts, ranked in Band 1 for Public Procurement by Chambers for over 15 years, offer bespoke procurement reform training which can be adapted for your team's unique requirements. Our sessions commonly cover the following areas:

- Procurement reform in context: Insight into the objectives for reform, the legal and political context, and process/timetable for the upcoming transition to the new regime.
- Principles of reform: Understanding the fundamental principles at the heart of the Procurement Act and how these might translate into updated procurement practice.
- Implementing reform in practice: Guidance on what the changes within the Procurement Act mean specifically for your organisation.

Our approach is both flexible (allowing you to select the full programme above or focus on specific areas of interest) and tailored to your industry or sector. Our aim is for your team to come away from the training feeling empowered to adapt to the changing landscape, resulting in better procurement outcomes for your organisation.

What's included:

- Tailored training session for an unlimited number of attendees
- Copy of presentation materials
- Copy of session recording if carried out remotely (available by prior request)

Duration & Format

Typically each session lasts 1 hour, with appropriate time for Q&A, but this can be adapted. We can deliver training online or remotely.

Audience

Due to our flexible and tailored approach, we can adapt our training for any audience – whether your team is entirely new to procurement in the UK market, or already has a sophisticated understanding of the existing rules.
